RECORDER'S AXE DROPS

A Woman Clerk in the Record Department Deposed.

Mrs. Montfiredery Succeeded by Dr. Shepard, of North Carolina—Other Changes Expected.

Already the official axe has begun its dreaded swing at the recorder's office, and as a consequence the clerks about that end of the city hall were in a state of suppressed suspense all day yesterday.

Recorder Cheatham left the building at early hour for the White House, where he spent some time in consultation with the President regarding the affairs of his office. It was later reported that several resignations have been asked for by the recorder, and that some appointments to fill the vacancies would be made at once. The only resignation demanded, however, was that of Mrs. Kate D. Montfiredery, a clerk in the record department.

This change was the result, it is said, of a letter written by the former chief clerk, George Smith, whom ex-Recorder Taylor deposed to appoint the last week, and a suit was filed at the time by Smith in the court of claims praying for 2,200 back salary.

Mr. Cheatham, it is said, was convinced of the illegality of the change and of the propriety of the resignation of Mrs. Montfiredery. Dr. James E. Shepard, of Durham, N. C., was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Montfiredery. "I shall not make any more changes for at least ten days," said the recorder yesterday. "I want to fully familiarize myself with the requirements of the office before I take any definite steps in the matter of appointments, and it will take a week or ten days to do that."

FINED FOR ASSAULT.
Interfered in Domestic Matters With the Usual Result.

Indor Belmont, a young man who serves lunches to the next force of printers on the Congressional Record, and Charles Kendall, a race horse trainer, were in the police court dock yesterday afternoon, charged with severely assaulting Harry Daley, a bartender, near Fourth and I streets northwest, last Monday evening. Daley's nose was broken, a tooth knocked out, his left eye blackened and closed, besides other injuries. He had been knocked senseless and was covered with blood when Policeman Harry Lanahan arrived on the scene and placed Belmont under arrest.

The trouble grew out of a controversy Daley had with Mrs. Lella Crawford, whose husband committed suicide a few weeks ago. Belmont and Kendall appeared as her champions, and assaulted Daley as he was leaving the house. Belmont was released on $5 collateral soon after his arrest, but Prosecutor Muldowney was not satisfied with that amount, and he was brought in on an attachment. In the meantime Kendall was arrested.

A number of ladies testified, and a cross-examination of witnesses was brought against Daley by Mrs. Crawford, who alleged that he threatened to split her head open with a hatchet, and spat three times in her face. Attorney Albert Silvers appeared for Belmont and Kendall, and Attorney Eugene O'Neill for Daley.

After hearing the testimony Judge Mills said Belmont and Kendall had waylaid and brutally beaten Daley in front of his own home about a matter in which they had no interest. He fined them $20 each, or sixty days in jail, and they went down. The threats case against Daley was dismissed.

POLICE COURT SENTENCES.

Colored Highwaymen Sent Up for Assault and Robbery.

The session of the police court continued until a late hour yesterday afternoon, as Judge Samuel C. Mills tried all the dock cases. Judge Kimball being engaged with the jury trial of the United States cases were fought and assaults, mainly the result of the too free use of intoxicants.

Alexander Beacham was fined $10 or thirty days in jail for assaulting Willis Barks, Mary Scott went to jail for two months for assaulting Sadie Lynch with a baseball bat; Eugene Boston, $10 or thirty days for assaulting Policeman Martin Brown, by seizing him in the collar; Alfred Newby, $10 or thirty days for assaulting Charles E. Bauer; John Stewart, $10 or thirty days for assaulting Louise Waddy; John Schradler, $5 or fifteen days for striking William Ludley.

The case of Frank Harrison, charged with assaulting Jane Jackson, was continued until tomorrow.

John Jackson, alias "Red Bill," and Jerry Jones, colored, were found guilty by a jury of committing a brutal assault upon Leonard and Frank Grimes, young white men from the country. The purpose of the assault was evidently highway robbery. Judge Kimball sentenced the prisoners to 120 days each in jail without fine.

Bill of Complaint Filed.

A bill of complaint was filed yesterday by Mary Francis Waite, sole executrix of the last will and testament of the late Amelia C. Waite, against Joseph Laroque, George Hoodley, and Charles C. Beaman, of New York city, trustees of a sum left, the income of which was left for her support and maintenance and which income she alleges has not been paid. The plaintiff asks that writs of subpoena may issue to the defendants commanding them to appear and show cause why a subpoena should not be issued directing them to comply with the provisions of the will.

PRAY UPON EXPECTORATE

Law Against Spitting in Public Places Is in Force.

LOOKING FOR A TEST CASE

Lawyers Say the Failure of the Ordinance to Recognize the Useful Cuspidore Is a Fatal Omission. Street Car Conductors Promise to Be Lenient With First Offenders.

The new order of the Commissioners, prohibiting expectoration in the street cars and in all public buildings under the control of the District, went into effect yesterday, and all those interested are anxiously watching to see the first case tried under it. So far no arrests have been made, but all readers of The Times are warned lest in an unguarded moment they violate the new law, be hauled into the police court, and their offense made a test case. The new order is dated May 19, and reads as follows:

It is ordered that Article X of the police regulations be amended by adding thereto the following section: That it shall be unlawful for any person to expectorate or spit in any part of any railway or other public vehicle which carries passengers for hire, or in or upon any part of any public building under the control of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Street car companies and the proprietors of other public vehicles carrying passengers for hire shall keep conspicuously posted in each and every part of their cars or public vehicles notices prohibiting such expectoration or spitting.

"Any person violating any of the provisions of this regulation shall, upon conviction in the police court of the District of Columbia, be punished by a fine not exceeding $10 and imprisonment for not more than ten days in the workhouse."

It was discovered by several of the lawyers of the District yesterday that the new law has made an important omission in not recognizing the existence of cuspidors in the public buildings. There are, say these authorities, in most if not all of the public buildings in the city receptacles intended for the use of those in the habit of expectorating, and if the law be considered as mandatory or strictly enforced it means that every time one uses these cuspidors he makes himself liable to arrest.

This they say is a decided looseness in framing the law, which may in the end make it null and void.

For some reason the street car companies have notified their employees that they are not to enforce the law until June 22. No reason could be assigned for this at the offices of the companies, but it was thought that the officials wished to give the public time to become accustomed to the new order of things.

The notice posted up for the conductors informs them that after June 22, if they see anyone violating the ordinance they are to call an officer and have the offender arrested, and if no officer be within call they are to secure the names of witnesses and all the necessary data in order to have a warrant issued at the first opportunity.

Street car conductors, as well as officials, however, all join in saying that they will go along in the enforcement of the new regulation, and only insist upon arrest when the violation is most flagrant. As one of them said yesterday:

"It seems to me that this order requires common sense in its application. It is not intended for persons who abscondedly expectorate on the car floor—it is intended to make them more careful—but for persons who continue to spit their mucus all over the car floor. I imagine that it is levied especially against tobacco chewers, who often enter a car and make the space all around them impassable by reason of their filthy expectoration."

"At any rate, we are not likely to hear much of the new law until the closed cars are used again, as the open ones give a man plenty of opportunity to expectorate in the street."

THE HEALTH OF THE CITY.

Facts Shown by the Weekly Vital Statistics Report.

The report of the health officer shows that the mortality of the city during the past week remained below normal. The deaths reported to the health department numbered eighty-five, of which forty-seven were of whites and thirty-eight of colored persons. The annual death rate was 15.7 for the whole population.

The range of diseases prevalent was confined mainly to those of the lungs, causing twenty-one deaths, of the kidneys nine deaths, and of the brain fifteen deaths. Infantile mortality declined from twenty-one, by the last report, to sixteen. The prevalence of zymotic diseases were reported, one being from dysentery and two from diphtheria. For this latter complaint two houses were placed under quarantine, and four were relieved of cards, and eleven remained in quarantine. One scarlet fever case was reported, and two were released from quarantine, and three remained with warning cards.

The meteorological conditions were a mean temperature of sixty-six degrees, a mean relative humidity of eighty-one, and a mean barometric pressure of 29.84. The thermometer rose from forty-seven degrees on the 9th to eighty-three degrees on the 16th, ranging thirty-six degrees. The winds were southerly, with an average movement of seven miles per hour, and the rainfall for the week was 3.69 inches.

Druggist Bodemer Acquitted.

Mr. Alfred Bodemer, a druggist at No. 805 Seventh street northwest, was acquitted by a police court jury yesterday afternoon on the charge of practicing medicine without a license. The case was brought by the health officer, and it was alleged that Mr. Bodemer circulated handbills advertising himself as "Dr. A. Bodemer." Also that he prescribed for different persons. The jury concluded, however, that the allegations had not been proven.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

From the Fairhaven (N. Y.) Register. Mr. James Rowland, of this village, states that for twenty-five years his wife has been a sufferer from rheumatism. A few nights ago she was in such pain that she was nearly crazy. She sent for Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and he had read of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and instead of going for the physician he went to the store and secured a bottle of it. His wife did not approve of Mr. Rowland's purchase at first, but nevertheless applied the Balm thoroughly, and in an hour's time was able to go to sleep. She now applies it whenever she feels an ache or a pain and finds that it always gives relief. He says that no medicine which she had used ever did her as much good. TROUBLES OF A TYPEWRITER

Dorothy Squires' Complaint Against Charles E. Barber.

Series of Allegations Charging Persecution Filed in the Courts. Seeks Law's Protection.

A bill of complaint was filed before the supreme court of the District yesterday by Dorothy E. Squires against Charles E. Barber, in which the plaintiff avers she was formerly employed as typewriter for Barber and that for good reasons she left him three years ago. She avers that about a year ago she determined for reasons, well known to Barber, to sever all relations with him, and that her mother and other members of the family were cognizant of her determination. She further alleges that she then requested the defendant to refrain from speaking or writing to her or coming where she was.

Since that time, she avers, he has threatened to injure her character, and compelled her at certain times to see him and to act in ways contrary to her wish, and with threatening to disgrace her and her family if she did not do so.

Plaintiff also alleges that she has been made miserable and unhappy by the conduct of the defendant, and is determined to oppose his wishes, and that she has notified Barber verbally, by writing and through her mother and brother and the police authorities, that he must cease his annoyances and threats, and that if he continued to do so she would expose the matter to the publicity of the courts.

The plaintiff then avers that since her determination was made to him he has persistently followed her, insulted her and threatened to ruin her reputation and that of her family if she did not submit to his wishes. She further alleges that she was compelled to have her mother accompany her to and from her work for protection from his insults.

The result of this was an affray between Barber and his brother on the 14th inst., and the arrest of Barber. Upon his promise in writing and verbally that he would not harass her any more the case was continued in the police court. She charges that Barber has failed to keep his promise, but persists in annoying her, and that on Monday last he came to her office in the Post building and again harassed her, and that she was finally compelled to leave her work for protection from his insults.

She prays that during the pending of the suit Barber may be restrained from in any way annoying her, either at her home, 327 C street northwest, or at her place of business or elsewhere. Mr. Campbell Carrington represents the complainant.
